35	Thankfully no. One reason for this is that we provided guided use of a smartphone and took an "exposure to situations with a grown up is better than ignorance or the kid finding out themselves from an untrustworthy source" kind of approach. Communication skills on technology differ greatly from the real world due to tone of voice subtleties being lost in the text only format, so that's a learning curve that all children will have to go through at some stage.	3/1/2022 3:26 PM
